Early End To Cold War Unlikely, Rusk Declares

Secretary Hints Red China May Join Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk, at his first news conference, advised Monday against expecting a speedy end to the cold war. He said serious days and hard work lie ahead.

Rusk also indicated that Kennedy administration strategists are considering whether to bring Red China into disarmament talks, including the soon to be resumed Geneva parley on ending nuclear weapons tests.

The secretary, a soft-spoken Georgian, replied to reporters' questions in the same State Department auditorium President Kennedy uses for his news conferences.

Kennedy Attends Meeting
Kennedy showed up at Rusk's daily gathering with staff aides, not long before Rusk's meeting with newsmen. Rusk said it was the first time in U. S. history that a president attended a secretary of state's morning staff meeting at the department.

Rusk seemed nervous as newsmen fired questions at him about the world's trouble spots.

As has been customary with previous secretaries of state, Rusk barred direct quotation of his remarks until the department had okayed the transcript.

But, as it turned out, he said nothing which would have shaken a teacup in the most sensitive diplomatic gathering. And his transcript was cleared for quotation with only a minor amount of adjustment to make it read smoother.

Dean Heads U.S. Geneva Team

Rusk praised the press, pledged frequent news conferences, said "our democracy works best when its leaders are candid"—but left himself ample leeway to keep silent when he believes that to be in the national interest.

He announced appointment of Arthur H. Dean, a one-time law partner of the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, to head U. S. negotiators at the Geneva atomic test ban talks which resume March 21. Dean has had wide diplomatic experience, including dealing with the Reds at the Panmunjom talks leading to the 1953 Korean truce.

Bonn Offers U.S. $900 Million

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany announced Monday it is offering more than $900 million in immediate financial help to the United States.

The money would be prepayment for $325 million in military equipment and $587 million in postwar debt over the next 27 years.

This offer falls short of what the United States has asked and is linked with a condition bound to meet with opposition there. That is that the remaining $200 million in West Germany's post-war debt be canceled in consideration of German assets seized in the United States during World War II.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk Monday refused to say whether he was satisfied with the recent West German offer.

Rusk told a news conference he would not comment on the offer because discussions with the West German government are continuing.

Tokyo Flu Toll Rises

TOKYO (AP)—An influenza epidemic sweeping Tokyo claimed two more lives Monday and forced closure of two additional kindergartens and 21 primary and junior high schools. Tokyo's anti-influenza headquarters said the deaths bring the toll to 13 since the epidemic broke out more than two weeks ago. Schools closed now total 901.

Jobless Aid Bills Offered By Kennedy

Would Extend Idle Benefits, Assist Needy Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy asked for billion-dollar action on his anti-recession proposals Monday. He sent Congress two bills, one to extend unemployment benefits, the other to help children whose fathers are out of work.

The two bills would provide more than $1.2 billion of assistance to the unemployed.

A third bill, calling for a boost in the minimum wage, will reach Congress Tuesday.

Prompt Action Asked

The most expensive bill in the package was the one on unemployment benefits. It temporarily would continue or reinstate payments to those who have exhausted all their benefits and still have no job.

Kennedy estimated this bill would provide $950 million for three million workers.

His second bill would authorize temporary help to needy children whose fathers are unemployed. An estimate of the cost: $305 million for the 15 months of its operation. "The need for prompt enactment of this legislation is clear," Kennedy said in a letter that accompanied the two bills.

The letter was sent to House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who presides over the Senate.

$1.15 Minimum Pay

The White House said the minimum wage bill would include a formula for raising the floor to $1.15 an hour immediately and to $1.25 within two years. The present minimum is $1 an hour.

None of the bills is a surprise. Kennedy discussed all three in his special economic message to Congress last week.

Kennedy noted that the country now has 5.4 million unemployed workers and that 500,000 already have exhausted their state benefits.

No Missile Gap In Russ Favor Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Kennedy administration defense high command has concluded that America does not lag behind Russia in numbers of intercontinental missiles.

It also sees no reason to expect a dangerous gap between U.S. and Soviet military power in the years ahead.

These conclusions, similar to those of the Eisenhower administration, were reported authoritatively Monday night to have been reached in the course of the new appraisal President Kennedy has ordered Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to make of U.S. defenses.

Conclusions reached in the studies now under way—so far as they concern the nation's retaliatory strength—were reported to be markedly different from claims made by many Democratic critics in recent years.

It had been predicted in Congress that the Soviet Union would hold a 3-1 majority over the United States in intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's) in the early 1960s and that this gap would widen.

The conclusion reached now is that there is not a missile gap today—that Russia does not have more ICBM's than the United States.

Moreover, like the defense high command of the Eisenhower administration, the new Kennedy team feels that the important question is whether there will be a gap in overall strength.

There was said to be no evidence of such a gap when America's top bomber, aircraft carrier, land-based missile and submarine-carried missile forces—both now and in the future—are compared with Russia's.

Soviets Still Silent On News Of Sputnik

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press and radio continued silent Monday on news about the seventh Sputnik sent up Saturday.

Pravda mentioned the acclaim in other capitals but gave no report on what has happened to the Sputnik. There has been no news of a concrete nature since the announcement of its orbiting.

S., and G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state for African affairs. The massive table desk, fashioned from parts of the 19th century H.M.S. ## Winter Storm Hits Midwest, Moves East

By The Associated Press

Snow piled up Monday in storm sections of the Southwest and spread across areas in the Midwest.

A storm centered near the Gulf Coast dropped heavy snow on western and north central Texas after dumping a foot of snow on the Panhandle district during the weekend.

Scores of schools were closed and driving took on new dangers. Farther south in Texas many roads were closed by high water caused by six inches of rain in a 36-hour period.

Snow up to nine inches accumulated in western Oklahoma.

The same storm, drifting slowly eastward, set off light snow in the Mississippi Valley. There was a possibility, the Chicago Weather Bureau said, that it might not reach the East Coast.

Fresh snow fell in St. Louis while crews still were cleaning up after Thursday's 8-inch fall. Traffic was slowed there.

The Weather Bureau in St. Louis predicted two to four inches of new snow in sections of eastern Missouri and southern Illinois.

New York City bent to the task of removing its heaviest snow in 13 years, a 17.4 inch deluge that staggered the city late last week. Streets were free of heavy traffic—under orders that permitted only essential public service movement of vehicles.

Reports that heavy ice was causing bridge vibrations in the Chesapeake Bay area prompted the Navy and Coast Guard to maintain patrols and keep bridge stations free of floes.

Temperatures rose in the snow-coated East. But the northern sections of Maine were chilled by sub-zero cold for the 20th consecutive day, equalling a record. It was three below zero in Houlton and two below in Caribou.

Diem Announces Government Shakeup

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — President Ngo Dinh Diem announced Monday a government shakeup and a cautious start toward more democracy in the villages.

Diem, who has been accused of dictatorship by political opponents, said youth groups will elect representatives on the now appointive village councils which handle local affairs. Provincial leaders will continue to appoint most council members.

Eventually, the president said, this first step could lead to wholly elected councils but the activity of Communist rebels makes it difficult to hold local elections on a large scale.

Lucille Ball Ill

NEW YORK (AP) — A virus sickened Lucille Ball and closed her musical show from Monday until Feb. 20.

Miss Ball, star of Wildcat, is to spend two weeks at Miami, Fla., recuperating. Her doctor ordered the layoff, her representative said.

Stevenson Seeks Soviet Agreement On Congo Policy

UNITED NATIONS N.Y. (UPI) — U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson sought Monday to win Russia's agreement on how to deal with the near chaos in the Congo.

Stevenson talked with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold for more than an hour and then went to the Soviet embassy in New York for his second Congo talk with Russian Ambassador Valerian A. Zorin.

He said the United States had been making "exploration, around the world in an effort to find a consensus" on the Congo since the Security Council adjourned for a long weekend of consultations last Thursday.

Fronzizi Dealt Election Blow

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—The victory of a Communist-backed Socialist in Sunday's senatorial election in Buenos Aires may force President Arturo Fronzizi to relax his stern austerity program.

That was the privately expressed view of government officials Monday as returns built up the margin of Socialist Alfredo Palacios. Fronzizi had hoped for a public vote of confidence.

The figures showed that since last year's congressional elections, the Argentine Socialists had picked up about 160,000 votes in this capital. Among the new-found supporters were Communists and young admirers of Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro. Both groups demonstrated happily when Palacios took an early lead.

Palacios, now 80, who repeatedly denounced "Yankee imperialism," will be the only opposition voice in the 46-member Senate, dominated by Fronzizi's intransigent Radical Union party.

Fronzizi's candidate, incumbent Sen. Armando Turano, ran a poor third behind Nicolas Romano of the People's Radical party, a liberal center group.

Fire Truck Kept Garaged As Seven Children Perish

WINDSOR MILLS, Que. (AP)—A fire truck was kept idle in a Windsor Mills garage Sunday while seven children died in a burning farm house four miles outside town.

A police report Monday told this story of the blaze that wiped out the family of Mr. and Mrs. Marc Saint-Laurent.

The fire broke out in the two-story frame home about 9:45 a.m. while the parents were milking cows in the barn.

Constable Lorenzo Houle received a telephone call for assistance at Windsor Mills' volunteer fire department at 10 a.m. The call was from Aimee Normandin, a neighbor of the Saint-Laurents. Houle tried to reach Mayor Theophile Bolduc and Fire Chief

Electrical Executives Also Fined

21 Corporations Fined $822,500 In Antitrust Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Seven executives of giant electric companies — described as "organization" men by the judge — were sentenced to 30-day jail terms Monday for federal antitrust violations.

The jail terms — a rarity in antitrust cases — were imposed along with fines totaling $822,500 against 21 companies and $109,000 against 36 individuals. A defense lawyer said individuals would pay their own fines.

Nineteen defendants were given 30-day suspended sentences and placed on five years' probation. Most held less important executive positions than those who were sent to jail.

In all, 29 corporations which make up virtually every large manufacturer of electrical equipment in the country and 45 of their executives were to appear before Judge J. Cullen Ganev in U.S. District Court. So many were involved that sentencing may not be completed before Wednesday. Companies include General Electric and Westinghouse, the nation's largest electrical firms.

"Shocking Indictment"

Ganev, in a presentencing statement, called the indictments — for price fixing and bid rigging — "a shocking indictment of a vast segment of our economy."

As for individual defendants, Ganev said he was "convinced that in the great number of these defendant cases, they were torn between conscience and an approved corporate policy, with the rewarding objectives of promotion, comfortable security and large salaries — in short, the organization or the company man, the conformist who goes along with his superiors and finds balm for his conscience in additional comforts and the security of his place in the corporate set up."

Three GE executives — W. S. Ginn of Schenectady, N.Y., a vice president; Lewis J. Burger of Fort Wayne, Ind., former manager of the Switchgear Division, and George E. Burens of Philadelphia, a former vice president who preceded Burger as Switchgear chief — were ordered to jail for 30 days.

J. H. Chiles of Pittsburgh, a vice president and C. I. Mauntel of Philadelphia, sales manager for the Steam Division, were the Westinghouse officials sentenced to jail.

Fines Range Up To $12,500

J. M. Cook, a vice president of Cutler-Hammer, Milwaukee, and E. R. Jung, vice president of Clark Controller Co., Cleveland, also received 30-day sentences.

Ganev said he would have sent F. F. Look, 68, president of Allen Bradley — a $130,000-a-year job, to jail also except for his age and that his wife was ill. Look was fined $7,500.

Ginn was fined $12,500 on two indictments; Mauntel, $2,500 on two indictments, and Chiles was fined $2,000. Burger, $2,000. Burens, $4,000. Cook, $2,000 and Jung, $2,000, all for one indictment each.

There were 72 pleas of guilty and 89 of no defense to 20 indictments for fixing prices and rigging bids at secret meetings.

"What really is at stake here is a vast section of our economic system that we are offering to uncommitted sections of the world as an alternative to planned economies," Judge Ganev said.

The defendants, said Ganev, "flagrantly mocked the image of that economic system of free enterprise."

Ganev pronounced sentence on six indictments, leaving 14 for disposition Tuesday and Wednesday.

Puerto Rican Named To State Dept. Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Monday named Dr. Arturo Morales-Carrión of Puerto Rico to be deputy assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

He is the first Puerto Rican to be appointed to such a high post in the State Department. His selection is expected to aid Kennedy's announced intention to improve U.S. relations with hemispheric neighbors.

"Almost Perfect" Crime Trial Under Way In Rome

ROME (AP)—Three men, proving innocence, went on trial Monday for murder in what police friend would be calling the called a perfect crime—almost—apartment to deliver a package, including alibi too good to be true. They said that friend was Ghiani, an electrician employed in a Milan factory. They said Mrs. Fenaroli let Ghiani in, and he strangled her and took some jewelry.

If police have the case reconstructed correctly, spectators jamming the courtroom will hear the story of a slaying that could have furnished the plot for a best-seller murder mystery.

The Italian press has called it "The trial of the century."

Police said only painstaking sleuthing kept Giovanni Fenaroli, 52, Carlo Inzolia, 29, and Raoul Ghiani, 30, from getting away with murder.

The victim was Fenaroli's wife, Maria, 48. She was strangled in the Fenaroli Rome apartment the night of Sept. 10, 1958, shortly after her husband had taken out a $240,000 insurance policy on her life.

All that night Fenaroli, head of a small surveying company, was in Milan, 400 miles away, on a business trip, and he could prove it. He could prove that barely an hour before the murder he talked to his wife by long-distance phone from Milan.

West Virginia Senator Urges Speedy Job Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., called Monday for quick passage of legislation to aid distressed areas which he said would enable the unemployed "to reach for a paycheck instead of a handout."

In a Senate speech, Byrd also asked that the legislation be followed up with what he called "an eight-point blueprint" for economic recovery of West Virginia and other states with pockets of poverty.

Byrd said that in addition to passage of the depressed areas bill other legislation is needed to provide full assistance to job-short areas.

He called for:

1. Establishment of a youth conservation corps to provide "the infusion of new money in the economy and the bolstering of long-term economic prospects through new and improved tourist and vacation facilities."

2. Federal assistance to such individuals as small mine operators and small businessmen through long-term, low-interest rate loans.
3. A research program to find new markets for products now produced and new uses for natural resources and products of coal.

4. Curtailment of cheaply produced imports such as foreign residual oils.

5. Amendment of the federal aid highway act to permit additional apportionment of funds for road construction "in non-productive and sub-productive land areas."

6. Acceleration and expansion of the federal-state pollution abatement program to improve water quality and supply.

7. Provision of federal funds, especially in economically depressed areas, for school construction and assistance to raise teacher salaries to levels that will keep them from leaving the state.

8. Establishment of additional national parks and monuments to bring both tourist dollars and work opportunities to distressed areas.

In calling for federal aid to small businessmen, Byrd said the once-thriving towns of Davis and Thomas, W. Va., at their peak had 15 mines in full operation. If they had one small mine operating today, he said, it would employ as many as 140 people.

He estimated it would take an investment of $1 million to develop one such mine and equip it with new and efficient machinery.

FBI Charges Marine Pilot Death Plot For Insurance

BALTIMORE (AP)—Capt. Er. Brice was handed over to the FBI Monday with charges of plotting the death of a Marine pilot for insurance. The FBI charged the 14-year Marine veteran admitted "he decided to disappear due to financial difficulties." The government said Brice had obtained a $50,000 life insurance policy prior to the crash Jan. 3 on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Arraigned Monday before a U.S. commissioner in Alexandria, Va., Brice was released in $5,000 bond and the hearing was continued to Feb. 13.

Brice's wife and three sons live in Dumfries, Va. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cary E. Brice, reside in Ray, Ariz.

The plane burned in a cornfield near Cambridge, Md., on the Choptank River. Searchers found a flight jacket and opened parachute. Nine days later, police found a flight suit hidden in brush along the river. Meanwhile, a resident of Trappe who reported he had given a man a ride to Easton the night of the crash identified him from a photograph as Brice.

Brice surrendered to the FBI the next day. He said he had been living in Baltimore hotels since the crash.

Five Quizzed In Stab Case C&O Claims It Assured 64% Of B&O Stock

BALTIMORE (AP)—Five persons — a shipyard worker, longshoreman, barber, handyman and unemployed man — were in custody Monday in connection with a fatal stabbing of two South Baltimore men.

No charges were placed, police said. Police said the fifth suspect, the handyman, turned himself in late Monday afternoon.

The unemployed man, 22, was arrested Monday near his Baltimore home. Earlier police had asked Philadelphia law enforcement officers to be on the lookout for the man because he has a brother living there.

The suspects were questioned in connection with the stabbing of William D. McCall, 19, and Franklin C. O'Blosser, 36.

The two victims were walking home from a tavern with Mrs. O'Blosser and Robert L. Mears, 37, when they were attacked. Mears said a car pulled alongside them and five persons inside started shouting at them.

A fight started. McCall died of several knife wounds an hour after being admitted to a hospital and O'Blosser of a stab in the chest a short time later.

Detectives said the fight might have started after a snowball was thrown at the car.

Friend Of Rees Suspected Him, Went To FBI

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—A long-time friend of jazz saxophonist Melvin D. Rees admitted in federal court Monday that it was at his insistence the FBI started investigating Rees for the kidnap murders of a family of four.

Glenn Moser, 31, a salesman from Norfolk, Va., testified that he had known Rees from boyhood and that the two shared a cottage in Norfolk with two women companions at the time the Carroll Jackson family of Apple Grove, Va., disappeared and later were found dead.

Moser said he first became suspicious of Rees when the latter left their cottage on Jan. 11, 1959—the day the Jackson family was last seen—and did not return until a week and a half later.

He said he wrote "about three letters" to the authorities voicing his suspicions and later visited the FBI to touch off the investigation. But he denied actually accusing his friend of the murders and rejected the contention of defense attorneys that he was out for a $10,000 reward.

The trial is formally limited to two of the murders — those of Mrs. Mildred Jackson, 27, and a five-year-old daughter Susan Ann. Their bodies were found nine weeks after the family disappeared, buried in shallow graves near Annapolis, Md. The bodies of the husband and a younger child were discovered two weeks earlier in Virginia.

Byrd Says Kennedy Gold Plan Not Enough

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats and Republicans had approving words for President Kennedy's gold message Monday. But some in his own party said he should go further by cutting foreign aid and asking more help from prosperous allies.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat, said "a much more positive and constructive effort must be made to reduce our foreign economic aid." Byrd cited Germany, Japan, Britain and France as nations which he said have achieved prosperity largely through U.S. aid.

"If the foreign economic assistance is still necessary, the time is overdue when these nations should assume their share of the responsibility," Byrd said, adding that unless this is done "I doubt if the recommendations today are sufficient" to check the flow of gold from the United States.

B&O Freight Train Wrecks At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP)—Fourteen cars of an 83-car Baltimore and Ohio mixed freight train derailed here tonight. No one was reported injured.

The derailed train, bound from Brunswick, Md., to Philadelphia, blocked the main passenger line west and three yard tracks, a spokesman for the B&O said.

The spokesman said there would be no delay in passenger service, however, as another line was available.

Speculation Sputnik Manned Bolstered

TURIN, Italy (AP)—A group of Turin University professors reported Monday night hearing "articulated noises" that might be a human voice on a tape recording made Sunday of radio signals on a frequency often used by Soviet satellites.

The professors said these noises—and sounds on another recording made several days earlier—could indicate the probable presence of a living being.

Both recordings were played for the professors Monday by the two amateur radio operators who monitored the signals—Achille and Giovan Battista Judica-Cordiglia.

On Feb. 2, the brothers said, they heard a signal with the usual hip-hip, plus sounds indicating "a human being or animal in a physical state of apparent difficulty."

At that time no Soviet satellites were known to be in orbit. Last Saturday the Soviet Union announced the launching of a giant new Sputnik.

The brothers monitored a new signal of the same frequency Sunday.

Mothers on the farms average more children than do mothers in the cities.

Kennedy Plan Would Help 5,000 Maryland Jobless

BALTIMORE (AP)—Should four children can be claimed. The proposed legislation provides that unemployment benefits would be continued to those workers who have exhausted their present benefits and still have no job. The extension could be for no longer, however, than a period equal to one-half the present duration, figures for November and December, 1960, show that there are 4,679 persons in the state who have exhausted their unemployment benefits. The January figures, not yet available, are expected to push this total well over 5,000.

Maryland currently pays benefits for 26 weeks at a maximum rate of $35 per week. An additional $2 per week can be obtained for every dependent child unemployed the extended benefit under 16, although no more than fits.

A spokesman at the Department of Employment Security said the legislation would only affect those persons who had exhausted their benefits on or after October 31, 1960.

It would be up to each state to decide if it wanted to give its unemployed the extended benefit. It would be up to each state to decide if it wanted to give its unemployed the extended benefit.

1960 Auto Deaths Embuzzer Will Be Per Miles Driven Sentenced Feb. 17

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (UPI)—Federal District Judge Henry N. Graven Monday set Feb. 17 for sentencing Mrs. Burnice Geiger, 58, confessed embezzler of $2 million from the Sheldon National Bank.

Mrs. Geiger pleaded guilty Jan. 30 to 35 counts of stealing funds from her father's bank. Sentencing was delayed pending a presentence investigation.

She could receive a maximum of 175 years in prison since each count carries a maximum penalty of 5 years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both.

Despite the high death total, motorists set a record for fewer traffic fatalities for every 100 million miles of motor vehicle travel. The 1960 ratio was 5.3 deaths, as compared to 1959's 5.4.

Community Council Plans Historical Restoration

The Cumberland Community Council has adopted the Allegany County Historical Society as its project for the year. With the cooperation of community organizations, the council plans the complete restoration of the building.

Mrs. Ralph Sell, Jr., conducted a meeting recently, at which time Miss Ruth Clauson, president of the society, submitted a list of things needed by the society. Members of the council reported these to their respective organizations.

The Jaynees have contributed $25 to the project; the Junior Woman's Civic Club, $75; the Toastmaster Club will have three members available to give speeches for programs; and the Jaycees, with William McKee and George Fey, Jr., in charge, have agreed to transport "cut rocks" to be used in the restoration. The rocks, Miss Clauson explained, were donated by the State Roads and had been on the Wolf farm.

The "importance of the public learning that the historical house is not just a bunch of antiques, but our heritage and shows the way of life of our ancestors," was stressed by Miss Clauson.

The main need, she said, is volunteer workers for repairing, painting and plastering.

It is hoped to have the historical house, 218 Washington Street, open two days a week, like Saturday and Sunday, or one day during the week for the children to visit it.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Can You Accept Favors Gracefully?

It may be more blessed to give than to receive, but this is a give and take world. Receiving is part of our natural relationship with others just as giving is. Do you know how to accept favors as gracefully as you bestow them?

We all know the person who is always doing something for someone else, but who seems unable to cope with the situation when anything is done for him. This so often causes embarrassment to everyone concerned. To make any well-intentioned person uncomfortable is, of course, out of the bounds of good manners as well as charm. Thus graciousness on the receiving end is as important as on the giving.

You want to be the giver as often as you can, but when you are in a position of accepting, do so simply. Don't object or try to refuse when an appropriate service or favor is done naturally and wholeheartedly. Argument is awkward, and it's a rebuff that isn't deserved. Then, too, it is unkind to deny another the pleasure of being generous or thoughtful.

Express appreciation that is definite, but avoid being profuse. Too emphatic thanks can also make others uncomfortable. A more sincere appreciation is expressed differently. It is so much better to remember until later when you can return the compliment with some generosity or thoughtfulness of your own.

The resolution was adopted unanimously. Mayor J. Edwin Keech is sending letters to state, county, city and town officials urging their support of the proposal.

The resolution and a letter are being dispatched to Gov. J. Millard Tawes.

In the letter to Tawes, Mayor Keech points out that "This is one of the most important matters affecting 'Education' which has ever been under consideration and I certainly want to take this opportunity to congratulate you upon your appointment of a committee to study the 'Problem of Expansion of the University of Maryland.' We are aware that your committee submitted many important recommendations in its report, one of which is the proposed conversion of Frostburg State Teachers College to a center of the University of Maryland."

"This proposal has received expressions of approval from all segments of Western Maryland, including industry, labor, civic and professional groups and the public in general. It is our sincere hope that such important legislation will be enacted at the current session of the General Assembly of Maryland," the Mayor's letter said.

Letters concerning the proposal were also sent to Maryland Attorney General Thomas B. Finan; State Sen. Charles M. See (R-Allegany) and the Allegany County delegation; Delegates William J. Walsh, Thomas F. Conlon, Jr., Estel Kelley, Fred B. Driscoll, Noel Speer Cook and Lester Reed; the Board of Allegany County Commissioners; the Board of Garrett County Commissioners; Sen. Bernard L. Gonder of Garrett County and the Garrett delegation; Delegates Elza E. Bray, Elbert E. Buckel and Leslie E. Savage; Mayors Roy L. Witt of Westernport; Ernest Poland of Barton; James E. Duckworth of Luke; Robert Peebles of Lonaconing; Ernest Glass of Accident; Russell L. Smith of Oakland; Carroll Rush of Friendsville; Joseph A. James of Frostburg; Lionel Baker of Midland; and Earl S. Shank of Kitzmiller.

In addition, other letters are being dispatched to State Sen. William S. James (D-Harford); and State Sen. Frederick L. Markus Jr. (D-Dorchester).

The resolution passed by the Mayor and Council today is as follows:

"WHEREAS the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland did on the 23rd day of May, 1960, adopt a resolution favoring the report of the commission known as the 'Warfield Commission,' which was appointed by Gov. J. Millard Tawes to study the problem of expansion of the University of Maryland; and

"WHEREAS the General Assembly of Maryland is now in session and the members of the Mayor and City Council feel that it is within the best interests of the citizens of Western Maryland as well as all of the citizens of Maryland, that necessary legislation be enacted at the current session of the General Assembly so that Frostburg State Teachers' College will become a branch of the University of Maryland; and

"WHEREAS the students eligible to be admitted to colleges will undoubtedly double within the next ten years so that this mat-

PE Projects Are Scheduled For This Area

The Potomac Edison Company has announced that it will spend nearly $94-million on construction projects during 1961, and according to Robert G. McDonald, PE president, the budget includes a number of projects in the Cumberland area.

One of the major items of local interest is a line construction program, the details of which have not been completed, and the continuation of the modernization program begun last year at the River Plant here.

The River Plant work involves modernizing the control panel system and equipment, and the total cost of the program is expected to amount to $180,000.

The multi-million dollar construction budget includes projects throughout the four-state area served by PE, McDonald said.

Except in years when new generating facilities were added, this is the largest one-year outlay for construction purposes in the history of the utility company, and represents over a million dollars more than was spent last year.

In announcing the budget, McDonald said the large expenditures were necessary to keep abreast of the anticipated future economic growth of PE's service area, and "to provide for our customers a constantly improving source of dependable electric energy for their convenience and comfort."

Included in this construction budget for the next 12 months are general plant expenditures of nearly $1,500,000, which will go to erect new offices, improve existing offices, and to replace and add to PE's extensive requirements in tools and equipment.

Construction facilities for the transmission of electric power will require over $3,500,000, including transmission lines and transmission substations. The line construction program includes allocations for building nearly 32 miles of 132,000-volt transmission line.

The major portion of the 1961 construction budget will go into PE's distribution system — well over $4,000,000 has been earmarked for this purpose. The main portion of this will be spent on numerous, relatively small extensions to new customers, in increasing capacity for additional load of existing customers, and for general improvements to the distribution system where required.

The addition of this year's construction spending will bring the total construction expenditures of Potomac Edison to over $50,000,000 in the past five years, an average of over $10,000,000 per year, the PE president said.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons
HOLLYWOOD — On February 15th United Artists Corporation celebrates its 10th anniversary under the control of Arthur B. Krim, president; Robert S. Benjamin, chairman of the board; Max E. Youngstein, Arnold Picker and Seymour Pesser. And this is a time to present these energetic gentlemen with a valentine from a grateful industry.

In 1951 these hep executives took over the old glamor-studded United Artists from the original founders, Mary-Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, D. W. Griffith and Joseph Schenck.

For various reasons, ranging from withdrawal to a death, the once illustrious United Artists had become practically a defunct organization. When the new management took over in 1951, all Hollywood was in a slump. Times were hard at the box office. Yet at the end of 1951 United Artists, functioning merely as a distributing agency, was writing in black ink, showing a profit!

With cash in the coffers, United Artists gradually moved from distribution to the backing of independently produced motion pictures and have to their credit over the period of years such smash attractions as "Marty," "Around the World in 80 Days," "Moulin Rouge," "The African Queen," "High Noon," "Witness for the Prosecution" and many many more.

In 1958 United Artists acquired the Lopert Films, Inc. importers of foreign films. Already a giant in the motion picture field, United Artists has recently branched out into music with United Artists Records, Inc., and United Artists Television, Inc. This branch is actively engaged in financing, producing and distributing films for TV. To round out its spirited expansion, UA took over the operation of the Astor and Victoria theatres on Broadway.

Democratic Split In New York

New York Democrats swept their state for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket in November, won a majority of the state's Congressional seats for the first time in more than a decade, and made substantial gains in the state legislature. But the celebration is likely to be a qualified one when the party faithful gather at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Saturday for their traditional post-election $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

Reason for the rein on jubilation: a schism within the party ranks that still must be resolved. At issue is the fate of Carmine G. De Sapio, New York County Democratic leader, and Michael H. Prendergast, Democratic state chairman. Former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman has shared the top anti-De Sapio leadership with Thomas K. Finletter and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the past two years, but the insurgents have not been able to depose the two top Democrats.

Now, however, President Kennedy is said to have decided that De Sapio and company must go, for the good of the party. Federal patronage is reporting being routed through Lehman, and, as The New York Times reported, Kennedy has shown "in many subtle ways" that he does not care to do business with De Sapio or Prendergast. During the inauguration ceremonies in Washington, for example, lesser New York State Democrats had places in the Presidential box at the inaugural ball, while De Sapio and Prendergast were among the 15,000 who milled about on the floor.

The hope is that the party rank-and-file, deprived of patronage, will bring about a change before long. Until then, New York State Democrats are not likely to receive all the political plums their remarkable election day performance would seem to warrant. As James T. Sharkey, who leads the organization Democrats in Brooklyn, complained, "I'm annoyed. We won New York State by a fantastic figure and we're still talking about a state chairman. It seems ridiculous to me. . . . You'd think we had lost the election when it was this state that put it over."

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

It Cannot Be Ignored

"Economic News," published by American Institute for Economic Research, starts one of its very interesting bulletins thus:

"Fifteen years ago West Germany stood virtually destitute, stripped of its industrial power, apparently overcrowded, ill-nourished, ill-clothed, and ill-housed. Bomb damage estimated in excess of $50,000,000,000, more than 10 times the damage in England, had destroyed much of Germany's industrial plant. Who would have believed that within 13 years the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States and the Under Secretary of State would come to Germany, hat in hand, to beg a little financial help in various ways?"

It is to be remembered that the occupation authorities, Americans included, attempted at the end of World War II to impose on Germany, as it did on Japan, a Keynesian, Fabian Socialistic economy. The West Germans escaped from that. They established sound money, backed by gold and as far as they could, they restored the free market. West Germany's economy is among the soundest in this disordered world.

President Kennedy, in every statement he has thus far made, has spoken of the receding economy of the United States. Some have criticized him for scaring the wits out of the American people; others contend that he is giving us a bad name throughout the world. But, the fact is that our economy is doing quite badly and while it is difficult to get absolute figures, unemployment looks larger than the 5,000,000 figure which the President gives. For in many plants there has been a reduction from five days to four days and even less and although such a worker is regarded as employed, he must also be regarded as unemployed or, at least, inadequately employed.

Undoubtedly the principal error, from the standpoint of our economy, has been the give-away program, beginning with the Marshall Plan and continuing to this day and beyond in various forms of aid. This has involved export of dollars, allocation of gold from our coffers to that of other nations, and the loss of revenue to American industrialists and workers.

It is impossible to abolish, at a moment's notice, every kind of foreign aid, without antagonizing many more nations which have accustomed themselves to drawing upon us for their needs.

Much that has actually happened was duly described in advance of the occurrence by those who have regarded the entire foreign aid program as misconceived and surely, as very badly handled. Nevertheless, we have gone through with it and now face the position of the man who outlived his own generosity and has to ask for support from those whom he aided. Their reply quite naturally is that they have problems of their own.

These two items, the dollar and unemployment, are not postonable and the solutions to them must produce results. Feeding unemployed workers is not giving them jobs. It is not a solution; it is a palliative. Giving out food stamps only puts Americans on the dole. A grandiose program of public works will not provide permanent jobs. This country has had a long and trying experience with welfare state remedies, which reduced the dignity of the American individual and tied him to government. We need a better device than a dole; we need jobs.

This is what President Kennedy faces. His program of palliatives will help, but they will not solve the problem which is to produce goods at prices which will make them competitive in the markets of the world, including the American home market.

It is true that the current depression did not start in 1961. The statisticians put it at 1958. It can be traced back, in some phases, earlier than 1958. The accumulation of problems relating to unemployment, inflation, a weak dollar, an inadequate gold reserve are now dumped in President Kennedy's lap. It does not matter that it is not his fault; what does matter is that he and his Administration must meet and solve these problems and that he has no time to waste. Men will not be patient about lack of jobs and inadequate household supplies.

It is a tough prospect, but if the best minds are put to work on it, we shall have results.

Woodrow Wilson picked a team that included Bernard Baruch, Herbert Hoover, Vance McCormick and Colonel House and others of their kind to assist him to solve difficult problems. Their like is not yet seen in the Washington of 1961.

Minuteman Missile Test To Benefit Air Force

WASHINGTON

The remarkable success of the first full-scale test of the Minuteman intercontinental missile is likely to prove a crucially important event in several different ways.

Its most obvious effect is to strengthen the hand of the Air Force in the current Pentagon debate about future defense policy. Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara is supposed to put an end to the debate, and to produce a new defense design by mid-February. McNamara's decision can hardly fail to be influenced by the demonstration that Minuteman is a practical weapon, inside of a weapons designer's gamble.

With just this end in view, Secretary of the Air Force Eugene Zuckert and the Air Staff are already pressing for an important expansion of the previously authorized Minuteman program.

Under severe Congressional pressure, the reluctant Eisenhower defense planners sometime ago accelerated the Minuteman program to allow production of operational missiles at the earliest practicable date—the end of 1962. But although they finally approved production of Minuteman with maximum speed, they refused to approve production of Minuteman in maximum quantity.

Thus the program that Secretaries McNamara and Zuckert inherited called for a peak output of 30 Minuteman missiles per month, on a single production line. What Secretary Zuckert and the Air Staff now want is the immediate addition of a second production line.

The second line can be completed soon enough to reach peak output at about the same time as the already approved production line. Hence the Strategic Air Command, which will now get its first operational Minuteman missile towards the end of 1962, can also count on 60 Minutemen per month by the end of the first quarter of 1963. In this manner, for the time, a real shortening of the missile gap can now be hoped for.

By Joseph Alsop

If decided on, the stepped-up Minuteman program will be quite different in kind from the other proposed expedients for dealing with the missile gap. It will not be an emergency measure, like expansion of the Strategic Air Command's airborne alert. It will not add to the national arsenal new weapons which are soon to become obsolete, like the liquid fueled Atlas and Titan missiles. Instead, it will strengthen ICBMs of the most advanced existing design.

This is because Minuteman is a solid-fueled rocket, with all the advantages of vastly greater mobility and greater ease of handling that go with solid fuels. It has only one defect. Like the Navy's Polaris, Minuteman's thrust is not as powerful as could be desired. Hence, again like Polaris, Minuteman cannot carry the weight of warhead that the designers have already built into the liquid fueled missiles. But this debit in the balance sheet is heavily outweighed by the credits.

Nonetheless, one must still speak of the stepped-up Minuteman program—in conditional, "if decided on" terms, because of the paller of the Pentagon debate since Secretary McNamara took office. The key fact to note is that the new Defense Secretary was much shocked to discover that a coherent, definitive defense design did not already exist.

Above all, no one had ever decided whether the Army-Navy theory of the nuclear deterrent, or the Air Force deterrent theory of "counter-force" was the right one. Without entering into the political-philosophical complexities

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BUSINESS OUTLOOK — The mere event of Kennedy's official take-over of the White House has created a new and more optimistic attitude concerning the nation's economic outlook.

First, the expectancy of some inflation has caused business and industry to take another look at their sharply depleted inventories with an eye to building up stocks before they are caught short by price increases.

Second, the inflation threat has brought about an appreciable rise in the stock market prices since the first of the year, which in turn has lent a rosier glow to the economy as a whole.

Third, the hint of better business conditions in the months ahead is having the effect of slowing the outward flow of dollars and gold. There are genuine hopes that, if business gets better as the forecasters now say, some of those dollars will be repatriated as domestic profit potentials mount.

On the debit side, unemployment continues high, and most economists are convinced it will remain so for many months to come, even if business does improve as expected this Spring and Summer.

New housing starts have dropped precipitately, and January figures are anxiously awaited to determine whether the figures are a serious trend or just another reflection of an unusually severe December weather occurrence.

Finally, steel production persists in the doldrums. An upward leap in auto production, presaging an increase in steel production, would raise the spirits of the Kennedy administration.

Ike's Last-Minute Executive Order Benefits Certain Big Oil Companies

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — One of the last official acts of President Eisenhower was to sign an executive order changing the regulations for the importation of residual oil into the United States. Few people noticed the order or understood what it meant. However, it is likely to have important aftermaths, plus interesting personal corollaries.

The order was signed by Ike three days before he left the White House, was rushed to the Interior Department where his Secretary of the Interior, Fred Seaton, barely had time to issue the procedural instructions on January 19, just as Ike was exiting to private life.

In the order, Ike directed that all importers of residual oil must sacrifice 15 per cent of their quotas for the benefit of newcomers who wanted to import residual fuel oil. Here are the aftermaths:

Aftermath No. 1 — Chief beneficiary of Ike's order was Gulf Oil, whose quota of residual oil was upped from 2,000 to about 20,000 barrels a day. Gulf had sued for a larger share of residual oil imports, but lost the suit. Despite this, Ike handed them the extra quota.

Interesting corollary — Gulf is owned by the Mellon family, which contributed $100,150 to Ike's campaign in 1956 and heavily to Nixon in 1960.

Aftermath No. 2 — Second biggest beneficiary from the Eisenhower order was Cities Service, which had no residual quota, but will now get around 3,000 barrels a day.

Aftermath No. 3 — Ike's last-minute order automatically increased the cost of heating government buildings in the Washington area alone by an estimated $400,000 a year. Stuart Petroleum has been supplying oil for government buildings at $2.08 per barrel but Ike's last-minute quota cut will leave Stuart short of oil. Uncle Sam must now accept the next lowest bidder at $2.40 per barrel.

Personal corollary — Head of Cities Service which benefits from Ike's order is W. Alton Jones, who has been Eisenhower's frequent golfing and hunting partner and guest at the White House.

Shortly before the President retired from the White House he made a special trip to Jones' Georgia plantation to hunt quail. And within a week after signing the order, the ex-President had flown to Georgia for another quail shoot with Alton Jones. All this may well have been purely coincidental.

Far more important, this column can now reveal that Alton Jones has been one of the silent partners in paying the expenses of the Eisenhower farm.

In previous columns it was disclosed that the expenses of the Gettysburg farm had been paid by B. G. "Billy" Byars, prominent Texas oilman, and George Allen, Ike's close friend and also an oil investor. This, however, is only part of the story.

This column has now obtained a copy of a letter dated January 28, 1958, written from Gettysburg and signed by Gen. Arthur S. Nevins, Ike's farm manager, which reveals the Jones partnership. The letter, addressed to George E. Allen in Washington and B. B. Byars in Tyler, Texas, begins with the salutation "Dear George and Billy," and proceeds to discuss the farm operation, details of which will be revealed in a future column. General Nevins states:

"New subject — The funds for the farm operation are getting low, so would each of you also let me have your check in the usual amount of $2,500. A similar amount will also be transferred to the partnership account from W. Alton Jones funds.

"I bought an exceptionally fine cow, a daughter of Eva's Bandolier Lad, Karama family at the Thomasville sale, but I can handle her purchase price from our normal operating funds. We have sold 4 steers recently for 30 1/2 cents lb. and will have some more to sell soon.

"With warm regards to all of you."

In the left-hand corner of the letter is a notation that a carbon copy is being sent to W. Alton Jones.

Repeated attempts were made to contact Mr. Jones over a period of two weeks for his comment on these and other matters. Note was forthcoming.

Ike's Oil Record

Some readers doubtless will ask why this column did not reveal these facts while Mr. Eisenhower was still in the White House. The answer is that his executive order was not published until January 19, one day before he left the White House and the letter showing the silent partnership of Alton Jones in the Gettysburg farm was not obtained until after that.

Earlier columns, published while Eisenhower was still President, did reveal the silent partnership of Allen and Byars in the Gettysburg farm.

It may have been that the January 19 order was completely justified, but no President should put himself under obligation to the oil industry when he has to pass on orders of this kind.

The important fact, which many people may have forgotten is that no President of the United States has done more for oil and gas than Eisenhower. Meanwhile he had three silent partners in his Gettysburg farm, two of them big oilmen, one of them less so.

Eisenhower had made a commitment in writing before his nomination that he would help overrule the Supreme Court's decision giving offshore oil to the federal government. This was done. He also appointed a committee of oil-gas men which was given office space inside the White House and which wrote a report recommending natural gas legislation removing gas pipelines from control of the Federal Power Commission. Then when the gas bill was stained with such scandal by the attempted bribery of Senator Case of South Dakota that the bill was vetoed, the President announced that he would sign a new bill later.

This became unnecessary because of the appointment of gas industry friends to the Power Commission, who let the gas companies put across a whole series of price boosts. And when one commissioner, William Connole, objected to these boosts, President Eisenhower eased him out of the commission.

This column has reported on oil influences among the Democrats including the Kennedy administration. Above is the record of the former Republican President who had three oilmen as silent partners in paying the expenses of the Gettysburg farm.

The New Trend

By John Crosby

From London comes word that craftsmanship is "out" in plays. The New Trend in English theater, it is said, is that the big hits have very little in common except that they are not well made. This is a revolution against slickness, a turning of the back against ordinary stage conventions.

Well, whaddaya know? Meanwhile, also from London, Dwight MacDonald, "Esquire's" explosive, articulate, always provocative film critics, reports almost the same kind of movement going forward in the cinema.

"The great success of the time here this fall is John Cassavetes' 'Shadows,' as refreshing as 'Pull My Daisy,' which has received great critical acclaim and is doing sensational theater at the Academy Theater. . . . He gave the actors a situation and they just keep talking, feeling it out, pushing it around. . . . This method results in a lyrical realism, fresh and spontaneous, that I haven't seen in a film since Donskoi's 1937-40 Gorky trilogy which told an extraordinary emotional truth by discarding those dramatic clichés we have become accustomed to. No Hollywood script writer would have submitted a script like 'Shadows' in which nothing is pointed up and anticlimax reigns supreme."

In short, down with the well-made in favor of the true. I say high time. I think here in New York we have a whisper of this movement in the enthusiasm of audiences and the evangelistic fervor of the theatergoers on behalf of such unconventional plays as "Taste of Honey" and "Rhinoceros." The big club-footed conventional hits like "Tenderloin" continue to draw stony-faced audiences who pay their money and sit quietly.

I do think—and maybe it's just wishful thinking—that we are seeing a revolt not so much against the well-made play or the well-made picture as against the slick and empty play. I think possibly this may be the beginning of a revolt against the strong director, who has dominated our theater for the last ten years (before that, few people knew and no one cared who directed a play) and who is squeezing the life out of the playwrights and out of the plays.

I do feel most strongly that we in America have developed a professional theater group of playwrights, producers, directors, and actors who mingle only with each other, attend each other's cocktail parties, and are beginning to speak a private language. Out of this collaboration comes something like "Do Re Mi," in which the characters do not resemble people, the situations resemble those in other plays rather than in life, the dialogue is just that rather than speech.

In short what Shelagh Delaney doesn't know about playwrighting, she more than makes up for by knowing about the people. She makes you care about her people and you just don't give a damn about anyone in "Toys in the Attic" which did poorly in London.

I have felt for a long time that our creative writers are getting awfully far away from the people they're writing about. In the '30s we had a fellow named John Steinbeck who wrote a magnificent novel about migratory workers called "The Grapes of Wrath." But Mr. Steinbeck had lived with migratory workers and he knew not only the life but the rhythms, the attitudes, the smells and the look of the people he described.

This separation of the writers from the people they're writing for and about extends to all forms of writing but I think more so in the theater and in the movies than anywhere else. The theater mob is an awfully insular mob and they seem to be creating things for each other rather than for the vulgar ticket-buying public. "Theater Arts" this month leads off with an article by George Spelvin, a nom de plume probably for John Chapman, drama critic for "The Daily News," according to Brooks Atkinson) in which he gets pretty grumpy about anyone on a newspaper being allowed to express an opinion on a play except the drama reviewer. Mr. Spelvin keeps using the phrase "official opinion." It sounds a little like the Soviet Union.

What the theater needs, I think, is not so much expertise as freshness—a Willa Cather or a Sinclair Lewis, fresh off the prairies, who have never had a meal at Sardi's and don't even know where it is. We're not going to find much freshness in the mob that eats at Sardi's every other night. They're too fat, too rich, too insulated, too parochial, too lazy, and just possibly too old.

No Evidence That Cancer Can Be Contagious

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Is cancer contagious? This question is asked more often now that viruses are believed to be a cause. This is understandable because viruses are associated with many of our most "catching" diseases such as the common cold, measles, and chicken pox. But to date there is no evidence that cancer is contagious.

A contagious infection must be located in an area where it can spread through direct contact, via the air, or in contaminated secretions. Appendicitis, for example, is caused by bacteria or viruses but it is not transmitted to those who come into contact with the victim. The viruses that cause cancer may be locked in the cells of a person at birth and cannot get out to plague others.

There is a possibility also that a segment of our population has built up an immunity to cancer viruses. The invasion of the body by anything, including microorganisms, will bring into play the defense mechanisms of the system. The ability to resist invaders is acquired through the development of immune bodies.

This may explain why cancer spreads like wild flowers in some but takes years in others. The first individual lacks resistance, whereas the other has acquired immunity and is capable of fighting back.

Many authorities believe the answer to cancer may lie in a vaccine that will protect us against our No. 2 killer. The American Cancer society is supporting 43 research grants along this line. Certain laboratory animals, for example, are resistant to cancer. But when their blood is given to animals susceptible to cancer, the latter seem to develop immunity to the disease.

Cancer cells floating in the blood stream usually do not live. When the malignant cells are traced with radio-active markers, only eight per 1,000 survive. But the few are as bad as 1,000 because they set up housekeeping and develop into tumors.

W. Va. Income Tax Bill Clears First Major Hurdle

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron's $15 million income tax proposal cleared its first major hurdle Monday in the Legislature. It was reported out of the Senate Finance Committee and will receive its first of three required readings Tuesday.

The House Finance Committee plans to report the lower chamber's version out Tuesday for its first reading Wednesday.

Barring any major hitch in the legislative process — and there doesn't appear to be any in prospect despite some opposition to the bill — the Senate would have the bill up for passage Thursday and the House the following day. Passage appears probable.

The Senate recessed for more than an hour Monday to give its Finance Committee time to work on the bill and report it to the floor. The House held its business session Monday night to allow finance and other committees the full afternoon for uninterrupted work.

Strong Vote
The 18-member Senate Finance Committee, which reportedly voted 2-to-1 in favor of reporting the income tax bill to the floor with a recommendation for passage, made a few changes in the measure, mostly technical. And it was learned that the House bill will contain exactly the same amendments.

Finance Chairman Hans McCourt of Webster Springs said the only significant amendment made was one designed to get around opponents' contentions that the bill illegally lets Congress fix state revenues.

McCourt said the amendment would require the Legislature to make changes in the law in event the federal government changes its income tax set-up. The bill requires West Virginia taxpayers to pay the state a sum equal to 6 percent of the amount they pay in federal income taxes. Without the amendment, any changes made by the federal government would automatically change the state's revenues.

Support Bill Revised

In other legislative action Monday:

— The Senate reconsidered the only bill it had defeated this session and passed it 18-13. The measure, defeated 26-5 last week, would raise from 16 to 18 the age of children a father is required to support.

— The Senate defeated 16-15 a bill which would have allowed the Ohio County clerk to appoint his commissioners of accounts. They are now appointed by the county court.

— The Senate passed 31-0 and sent to the House for concurrence a bill to permit two or more counties to join in the operation of a regional library.

The opposition to the income tax, which appeared to be quite formidable during the first 10 days after Gov. W. W. Barron proposed it in his initial address to the Legislature, appears to be dwindling.

First indications were that a strong fight would be made against the bill when it reached second reading — the amendment stage—but it now appears that the debates may be comparatively mild.

Barron has made it clear that he is unalterably in favor of the income tax as the primary source of revenue for his $17.5 million program and some of the earlier mavericks in both legislative chambers have simmered down.

Garrett Gas Output Jumps During Winter

County Receives $21,101 In Tax

OAKLAND — The quarterly report of the production from the local gas field took a winter spurt and brought the Garrett County Commissioners a check for $21,101.11.

A total of 1,155,994,000 cubic feet was taken from the wells of the area, compared to 802,651,000 for the previous three months.

The report covers the period October 1 - December 31, 1960 and showed an average of more than 12 million cubic feet per day. The amount received for marketable gas was $301,444.41.

The increase was reflected in the amount of the check received from the gas companies by the commissioners as their share of the seven per cent tax on marketable gas. The check for $21,101.11 compared to the one of $14,364.95 received some three months ago.

Some checks for a three-month period have run as high as $28,000.

The check started a new year for the fund. The last full year showed $78,354.31 received while the two previous years were $80,703.43 and $83,733.85.

The first $50,000 in any one year goes toward the liquidation of the school indebtedness. The next $25,000 goes toward expenses of the local hospital and any amount above $75,000 goes into a fund for new school buildings, repairs or additional new construction.

Thirty-eight wells were listed as producing gas, one more than for the previous report. The Jasper Riley, not listed in the last report, again was included with an output of 1,338,000 cubic feet.

Seventeen wells were listed under jointing names of O. Eberly with 46,875 per cent; Robert Eberly, 6,250 per cent; William E. Snee, 43,313 per cent and L. N. Murray, 1,562 per cent. These wells were again the biggest producers with the most productive being the Bowser well with 161,948,000 cubic feet.

Others were the Herman and Hanlin well, 158,954,000 cubic feet; Black and Frazier, 137,463,000 cubic feet and Collier 114,119,000 cubic feet. The Norris K. Welch well, which was the area's first producer, supplied over 10 million cubic feet during the quarter.

A percentage of the total received by the Commissioners goes to incorporated towns if a producing well is located within corporate limits. The breakdown also showed that $8,440.44 of the check was from the purchaser's proportion of the tax at 2.8 per cent, and $12,660.67 was from the producer's proportion of the tax at 4.2 per cent.

Since the first check for the tax on marketable gas was received by the commissioners in July, 1951, the county's governing body has received $545,376.61.

West Virginia Freshmen Defeat Potomac State, 70-69

Frosh Chalk Up Ninth Win Of Campaign

Bill Maphis Leads Scorers With 21 As Victors Cop Series

The West Virginia Freshmen, led by the scoring duo of Bill Maphis and Tom Lowry, overcame a troublesome Potomac State five last night, edging the Catamounts, 70-69, at Keyser to sweep the season's series between the two teams.

The victory was the ninth of the campaign for Coach Quentin Barnett's Little Mountaineers who earlier in the year defeated the Catamounts, 77-56, at Martinsburg, W. Va.

Potomac State led briefly, 1-0, at the outset of the contest, but trailed the Mountaineer Frosh thereafter, although tying the score seven times in the close battle. The count was deadlocked at 14, 31, 51, 53, 57, 59, and 61 before Lowry's goal broke the 61-61 tie with five minutes to play and put the visiting Freshmen ahead for keeps.

Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's Catamounts trailed 70-67 with 10 seconds left when Stan Shingleton tossed in the final basket of the game to pull the losers within one point at the buzzer.

One of the highlights of the contest was the scoring duel between Maphis and Shingleton, both of whom starred on Romney High School's undefeated West Virginia Class AA champions last year.

Maphis was the game's leading scorer with 21 points for the Freshmen, followed by Lowry's 19 tallies and 16 by Bob Camp. Shingleton paced Potomac State's scoring attack with 19 points on six goals and 7-8 at the foul line. William Kennedy chipped in with 15, including 9-12 on free throws for the losers.

West Virginia won the game at the foul stripe where the Little Mountaineers converted 20-27 free throws to Potomac State's 19-30. Both teams tallied 25 shots from the floor.

The loss snapped Potomac's three-game winning skein and gave the Catamounts an 11-7 mark for the season. The lineups:

Bruce Visits Fort Hill, Allegany At Beall Tonight

Deer Harvests Necessary?

This, or a similar question is asked frequently by well-meaning citizens of Maryland. A follow-up to such a question often suggests that if the hunting seasons were closed, there would be "lots" of game next year.

Certainly, these individuals are sincere in their convictions. In reality this line of thinking is without foundation in fact, and is but one more indication that game management is being confronted by an uninformed public.

Deer cannot be "stockpiled" by closing the hunting season with the idea of having a "bumper crop" at the end of the period of grace. When surplus animals are not harvested by hunters, other mortality factors are exerted upon the population.

It has been estimated that at least 40% of any deer population is lost annually regardless of whether a deer season is held or not. In other words, hunters harvest many of the animals that would have been lost to other causes, anyway.

The annual deer seasons tend to disperse deer concentrations away from established home ranges to new areas of acceptable habitat, thereby reducing competition for food and lessening the chance of a disease running rampant through a herd.

Harvests are necessary to control the herd in reducing interference by depredation on agricultural operations.

Finally, when the deer population is maintained slightly below the carrying capacity of its range, a biological barometer seems to trigger a maximum reproduction effort, and more young per female are actually produced than if these same females were found on an over-stocked area.

Annual deer harvests are necessary.

Brain Worms In Deer

Meningo-worms (Odocoileus onchocerca) were found in the brain of 97 deer out of 186 examined in Maryland during the past deer season, reports Frank A. Hayes, Director of the Southeastern Cooperative Wildlife Disease Study.

It is not known the seriousness of the infection by these thread-like parasites, but Hayes pointed out "we subsequently are of the conviction that under certain conditions, these nematodes (roundworms) are capable of producing high mortality among white-tailed deer."

Game Management

Wildlife Field Superintendent Stanley Alexander of Hagerstown reports the following work accomplished on the Green Ridge State Forest in Allegany County, the Swallow Falls, the Savage River and the Potomac State Forests of Garrett County, during the past fiscal year.

Twenty-two (22) acres of forest food patches were planted. Sixty-two (62) acres of food patches were mowed. Seventy-five (75) winter feeding stations serviced with grain. A total of 223 wild turkeys were released on the Garrett County forests.

Blister Rust Control

Antibiotic drugs have for the first time been successfully adapted to the control of a tree disease, reports the U.S. Forest Service.

Two in particular — actidione and phytoactin — have shown most promise. Actidione applied to tree trunks has shown that it kills rust on white pine.

2 Billion Trees Planted

According to Forest Service Chief Richard E. McArdle over 2 million trees were planted in fiscal 1959 on 2,151,743 acres.

One-third (about 700,000 acres) planted was cropland placed under the Conservation Reserve in 10 year contracts.

Know Your Birds

An informative 64 page guide entitled "Some Common Birds of Maryland" is now being published and distributed by the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

An increasing demand for information about Maryland's birdlife prompted the publication of this pocket guide containing full color illustrations and information about sixty of our common birds.

Maryland's state bird, the Baltimore Oriole, was named by Swedish naturalist, Linnaeus, for Lord Baltimore since his family crest colors, orange and black, were the same as the plumage of this striking bird. This oriole was first described by early Maryland colonists in letters to kin in the Old World.

Four-Way Tie Possible For Lead In WMI

LaSalle Will Host Bisons; Southern To Battle Huskies

Bruce High's Bulldogs and Allegany High's Campers, the deadlocked leaders of the W.M.I. League, will face Fort Hill's Sentinels and Beall's Mountaineers, tied for the runner-up spot, one game off the pace, in a pair of important contests tonight at Fort Hill and Frostburg.

Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bulldogs (4-1) come here hopeful of avenging the lone setback of the league campaign which they suffered at the hands of Fort Hill (61-54) at Westernport. Beall (3-2) will also be out for revenge when it hosts the Campers who bagged the first game of the series at Campobello by the score of 52-48.

Four-Way Tie Possible

If Beall and Fort Hill manage to come through with victories in tonight's games there will be a four-way tie for first place in the six-school county circuit.

Beall's last victory over an Allegany team at Frostburg (48-41) was in 1955, the year Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Mountaineers won the W.M.I. League title. Last year the teams engaged in a pair of thrillers, Allegany winning at Frostburg, 38-36, and also here in overtime, 39-37. The 1959 final at Frostburg was an extra period affair in which Allegany won, 62-59. The Campers have won their last five engagements in the Mountain City. LaSalle had won 12 in a row from Beall until last Wednesday when the Mounties spilled the Explorers at Frostburg, 73-71.

Class B Game At Valley

The fourth game of the Allegany county Class "B" series is on tap for tonight with Valley's Black Knights slated to play at Mt. Savage. Bruce is setting the pace in this race with 2-0. Mt. Savage is 1-1 and Valley 0-2. Valley will be making its 15th attempt to bag its first win from a high school opponent this season. Mt. Savage captured the series opener by the score of 63-44.

Valley has won 12 of 15 games in this series, taking 7 of 8 at Lonaconing and 5 of 7 in Mt. Savage.

Bedford At LaSalle

LaSalle will be making its first appearance on the home court since January 24 when it hosts the Bedford High School Bisons tonight at SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium in the final of a home-and-home series. The Explorers (13-3) won at Bedford January 3 by the score of 60-42 and figure to repeat over the Bisons who have won only two of 13 games this season. Coach George Geatz's quint will be gunning for its ninth consecutive win at home this season.

Petersburg's Vikings, among the teams in the running for the Potomac Valley Conference titles, are scheduled to entertain Romney High School (3-9) tonight. The Vikings are 10-2 in the league and are right on the heels of Beall which leads the race with a 7-1 mark. Petersburg beat Romney 85-49 earlier in the campaign and should sweep the series.

Elks Entertain Hawks

Elk Garden, another leading contender with a 9-2 record, plays host to Ridgeley (7-8). Coach Paul Kalbaugh's quint holds a 61-52 decision over the Blackhaws.

Wardensville (3-4) plays at Fort Ashby (9-3). Mathias (1-7) visits the Franklin Panthers (3-6) and West Virginia School for the Deaf (2-6) invades Paw Paw (5-5) in other P.V.C. contests on tonight's card.

Garrett Teams Meet

Johnson To Meet Bowdry In NBA Light-Heavy Fight

Philadelphia Rules 3-1 Choice In Bout Tonight In Florida

By OSCAR FRALEY

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Muscular Harold Johnson of Philadelphia ruled a 3 to 1 favorite Monday night on the eve of a bout with young knockout artist Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis for National Boxing Association recognition as light heavyweight champion of the world.

The 32-year-old Johnson and his 23-year-old rival for the title taken away from ancient Archie Moore by the NBA both predicted a knockout in their scheduled 15-rounder at Convention Hall Tuesday night. The bout at 10 p.m. EST will not be televised or broadcast.

A sellout crowd of 8,000 was expected to contribute a gate of $60,000, with each fighter receiving 25 per cent. The winner also was in line for a possible world-recognized title fight with Moore, who has been offered a $250,000 guarantee by a group of Miami beach sportsmen to meet the new NBA champion.

Johnson ruled the favorite to win the title on the experience gained in 15 years in the ring. A boxer and counter puncher, he has won 63 of 71 bouts, 29 by knockouts. Of his eight losses, four were to Moore, over whom he holds one decision, and four came by knockouts.

Bowdry, a bob-and-weave slugger who has been training the past year under the tutelage of triple crown immortal Henry Armstrong, has won 29 of 34 bouts, 23 of them by knockouts. Of his five losses, four were by the kayo route.

Beall Asks Navy To Certify Need For Bridge

Says Project Would Cut Unemployment

Immediate certification by the Navy of the need for a new bridge across the Potomac River at Pinto was requested yesterday by United States Senator J. Glenn Beall.

The request was made at a meeting in Senator Beall's office, attended by representatives of the Navy's Bureau of Naval Weapons and Bureau of Yards and Docks. Senator Beall said that as soon as he receives such a certification, he will go directly to the White House and request that construction be started as an aid to the unemployment problems of the area.

Cites Load Limit

He pointed out to the Navy officials that the present bridge which serves the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory was built in 1882 and has a load limit of 16,000 pounds.

Because of the expansion of Navy activities at the plant, the structure is now unsafe and inadequate, Senator Beall said.

Attending the meeting with Senator Beall were J. C. Sartoris, head of the Industrial Installations branch of the Bureau of Naval Weapons; W. J. Widmayer, his assistant; Eric Collins, legislative liaison officer of the Bureau of Naval Weapons; and Melvin Brown, of the Special Projects office of the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

Cost Is $800,000

Efforts toward the construction of the bridge have been pushed for several years on the county, state and federal levels.

Governor Tawes recently pledged his full support for the plan which is being expedited in Washington by Senator Beall.

It is estimated the span would cost about $800,000.

The new bridge is needed to meet the needs of ABL, a research and development center for solid rocket propellants, operated for the Navy's Bureau of Ordnance by the Hercules Powder Company.

Tax Exemption, Fee Payment Bills Received

Copies of two bills of interest to residents of Western Maryland have been received here. They propose tax exemption of properties of labor unions in Allegany County and for requiring payments of costs before filing suits with trial magistrates in Garrett County.

House Bill 217, sponsored by the Allegany County Delegation, would provide a tax exemption for purposes of county taxation for properties owned by labor unions. It provides that:

"In Allegany County for purposes of county taxation the property, real and personal, owned directly or indirectly by any bona fide labor union or unions, or by any corporation whose capital stock is exclusively owned by any bona fide labor union or unions, provided that such property is used solely for the mutual benefits of its or their members and not for profit.

"Any part of such property which is commercially rented shall be taxable to the full extent of the commercial use on the fair value of the property so rented."

The other, House Bill 237, sponsored by the Garrett County Delegation, provides that:

"In Garrett County, no suit or action shall be filed with any justice of the peace designated as a trial magistrate until the fees allowed in Section 20 have been paid to the justice of the peace."

College Expansion-5 Laboratory Facilities Would Jump 610 Per Cent

This is the fifth in a series of factual articles about the proposed unification of Frostburg State Teachers College and the University of Maryland. Today's article deals with the expansion of instructional facilities that would occur as a center of the University.

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

To fulfill the needs as a center of the University of Maryland, facilities used for instructional purposes on the Frostburg campus would be more than doubled, according to one of the specific recommendations in the feasibility report submitted to Governor J. Millard Tawes.

This feasibility report, the work of a committee headed by Dr. Albin O. Kuhn, executive vice president of the University of Maryland, stated that facilities now being used for instructional purposes at Frostburg occupy 48,069 gross square feet. It is projected that there will need to be added 32,605 gross square feet for the planned student body of 1,500 as a center of the University of Maryland.

Half For Laboratories

Nearly half of this increased space would be for laboratories. Scientific discoveries of the past few years have emphasized the importance of basic research in an educational program.

Significantly, the Kuhn report would jump the laboratory space at the Frostburg campus by 610 per cent. From the present 4,224 gross square feet it would be jumped 25,776 square feet to a new total 30,000 gross square feet.

Classroom space at the college apparently is nearly adequate to meet the projected enrollment of 1,500 students as a University center. Classroom space would be increased only a little more than 20 per cent, from 16,225 gross square feet to 19,500 gross square feet.

Administrative offices would need to be increased 82.3 per cent from 4,113 square feet to 7,500 square feet. Faculty offices would be in line for a 48.3 per cent boost, from 9,100 square feet to 13,500 square feet.

$1,159,419 Cost Involved

To construct and equip the 52,605 gross square feet of floor space at an estimated cost of $22.04 per square foot would cost $1,159,419. That is more than one-fourth of the capital improvement expenditures of $4,050,919 projected over a 10-year period.

The Kuhn report discusses in some detail the course offerings at the teachers colleges during the past two school years. At Frostburg, it is pointed out, the two-course sequence "Animal Biology and Plan Biology" and the two-course sequence "Physical Science" made up 67.8 per cent of the course credit hours in science. On the other hand, only 10.2 per cent was in general chemistry and three per cent in physics.

As a center of the University of Maryland, the Frostburg college would offer a major in biological science. The science program would include initial courses in botany, zoology and microbiology; sequence in chemistry followed by organic chemistry and quantitative analysis and sequence in physics.

House Passes Civil Rights Legislation

State Agencies Would Be Affected

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland House of Delegates Monday night passed a Civil Rights bill that may be used as a model for others that integrationists hope to have approved by the legislature.

The House sent to the Senate without debate a bill to prohibit the heads of State agencies from discriminating because of color in hiring employees.

A key clause is that complaints are to be filed with the attorney general who will decide if they warrant prosecution.

The House insisted last week that this screening by the attorney general be compulsory rather than permissive. The House wanted to protect department heads from promiscuous charges.

The provision headed off any potential objection to the anti-segregation policy and gave integrationists an idea. They have several other bills pending, notably to outlaw refusal by hotels and restaurants to refuse service to persons because of color or national origin.

The prepared bills would allow any alleged aggrieved person to file a complaint with a magistrate. Integrationists, encouraged by House acceptance of the State hiring bill, were prepared to offer amendments to their original hotel and restaurant bills.

They also would provide for a screening of complaints by the attorney general to protect owners from irresponsible charges and undesired publicity.

If the attorney general decided that grounds for prosecution existed, he would refer the complaint to the State's attorney of Baltimore City or the county involved.

The State hiring bill passed by the House Monday night was the second to clear one of the chambers this session. The House last week approved a bill requiring contractors on state jobs to agree not to discriminate in hiring their help.

Contractors convicted of discrimination would lose the state award.

Louisiana Avenue Home Broken Into

Someone broke into 518 Louisiana Avenue during the past several days and ransacked the home of Mrs. Cora Griffith, city police said yesterday.

City Police Detective Captain James E. Van said a complaint was received from Elizabeth Lauer, 522 Louisiana Avenue, who had gone to Mrs. Griffith's home to check it while she was away.

Captain Van said the kitchen door in the rear of the dwelling was forced and the intruder, who apparently was looking for money, went through the home and ransacked all the rooms with the exception of a bedroom.

Legislature At A Glance

By The Associated Press
CIVIL RIGHTS — The House passed a Civil Rights bill to prohibit discrimination in State hiring with the prospect it may become a model for other integration bills.

LABOR — A bill which would require the telephone company to pay its employees the same pay scales throughout the state for similar work performed was introduced in the Senate.

SAVINGS AND LOAN—The sponsor of a bill to restrict operations of a financial insurance firm headed by Baltimore County delegates indicated he will seek a postponement of committee action Tuesday because of an expected absence of backers.

Demos Endorse University Plan At Frostburg

Favor Food Stamps; Oppose Beer Tax

The Democratic State Central Committee of Allegany County, at a meeting yesterday at noon, passed three resolutions, and elected a vice chairman.

The committee went on record urging the Governor and General Assembly to support the plan to create Frostburg State Teachers College as a center of the University of Maryland. Unanimously endorsed, members of the committee praised the action of local civic leaders, newspapers and others who are currently urging this step toward greater opportunity in higher education for residents of Western Maryland.

A resolution was also adopted calling for the inclusion of Allegany County in the President's proposed food stamp plan to help the needy, unemployed and indigent of the county. Members expressed the view that this additional assistance to the jobless may be needed in some sections of the county.

The committee also adopted a resolution voicing strong opposition to a General Assembly proposal for an additional state tax on beer. It was pointed out that local breweries are among the larger steady employers of labor in this county, and any additional tax upon their product might place them in a less competitive situation, in exporting their products to other states. It was also expressed by committee members that any such additional tax would be an imposition on the consuming public.

The committee also elected F. Allan Weatherholt as vice chairman. Thomas B. Finan, chairman, suggested that a vice chairman be selected, because he is out of the city much of the time, since his appointment as attorney-general. There are problems which arise occasionally, and the committee agreed that someone should have the responsibility of polling the committee or calling a meeting in these situations.

Present at the meeting were Thomas B. Finan, chairman; C. William McDermott, Edward J. Ryan, John Ralph Kelly, William Kelly, Leslie J. Clark, secretary, William L. Wilson Jr., treasurer, and F. Allan Weatherholt, vice-chairman.

Opposition Of College Explained

Five-Page Letter Outlines Views

The faculty and administration of Frostburg State Teachers College set forth their reasons for opposing unification of the college with the University of Maryland in a five-page letter to the editor of The Cumberland News.

Views of the faculty and administration are set forth in this long letter printed below in its entirety:

To the Editor:

Reference has been made in The Sunday Times, February 5, to the fact that the Frostburg State Teachers College faculty and administration are opposed to the unification of the College with the University of Maryland and we have been asked since to state our reasons. This, we will do as briefly as possible.

We should like to call to your attention, and to that of the general public, several highly important items which are of vital concern to the residents of Western Maryland.

First, the State Board of Education has already (last May) approved the four-year liberal arts A. B. degree including pre-professional courses. The first students with the liberal arts A.B. degree will graduate next academic year.

Your governing board has already (last May) approved the preparation of senior high school teachers.

Your governing board goes beyond the University of Maryland Report in projecting majors also in art, music and physical education at a later date.

Your governing board has been administering a curriculum for nurses and will consider expansion of this program. To date there has been no mention in the University of Maryland Report of a program of nursing in the proposed branch.

Second, the cost will be greatly increased for every student who will attend college under the proposed merger plan. Here are the facts.

Rates Cited

Yearly rates being paid by students at Frostburg State Teachers College today are as follows:

317 students in teacher education living at home and paying $45 in fees.

400 teacher education students in dormitories paying $311 in room, board, and fees.

168 teacher education students renting rooms in town and paying $224 in board and fees to the College plus room rent in town. 75 liberal arts students living at home and paying $195 in tuition and fees.

27 liberal arts students renting rooms in town and paying $374 in board, tuition and fees to the College plus room rent in town. 10 out-of-state students living at (Continued on Page 11)

Centre Street Church Schedules Conference

The Commission on Education of Centre Street Methodist Church announces a workers' conference for all teachers and workers in the Church School tomorrow from 7:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. in the chapel.

Ernest A. Lindsay, chairman, said that Dr. A.

Merritt Dietterich, executive secretary of the Board of Education of the Baltimore Conference, will be the leader of the meeting.

"Space—Our Church School's Greatest Need," will be the theme of the conference which will replace the regular monthly meeting of the commission.

The conference is an outgrowth of the previous worker's conference held in November and since Dr. Dietterich is an outstanding worker in the planning and effective use of space in Church Schools, he is being brought here by the unanimous decision of the commission.

Mrs. Ernest Lindsay, general superintendent of the Church School, is in charge of the conference. Mrs. John Nicklin, senior department superintendent will give the devotions, and Mrs. Donald Paulman, chairman of local church activities, will be in charge of refreshments.

Prior to Dr. Dietterich's appointment to the Baltimore Conference in 1959, he served in a similar capacity with the Des Moines, Iowa area Board of Education.

He also served as president of the Executive Secretaries section of the National Conference on Christian Education. Dr. Dietterich has worked with church group laboratories and is certified as a trainer in this field.

The worker's conference, which is part of the planned educational program of the church, provides a unification of teachers and departments in carrying out the work outlined by the Commission on Education and promotes Christian fellowship among the workers.

100 Students Hear Talks On University Plan

Gilchrist, Jenkins Answer Objections

A group of students of Frostburg State Teachers College met last night with two Allegany County attorneys to discuss the proposed inclusion of that college as part of the University of Maryland.

C. William Gilchrist and William S. Jenkins met with the delegation of students at the fire hall in Frostburg.

The students voiced objection to the college becoming a part of the University and it was cited that the expenses of getting an education at the college would be increased.

Reasons Given

Mr. Gilchrist presented various reasons why the college should become part of the University. He said the State Board of Education at one time refused to branch out into the liberal arts field.

However the board revised that decision in May of last year. The State Board of Education and the University are seeking to do the same job for higher education in Maryland, said Mr. Gilchrist.

He distinguished between the Warfield Plan and the Kuhn plan. A number of questions were answered.
